Log In or Request an Account

To continually improve your experience with us online we are implementing a series of enhancements that, when complete, will enable you to gain access to all your information through a single login.

Several resources can already be accessed through a single login. If you previously established an account through rockwellcollins.com, our Customer Portal (rockwellcollins.com/customer) or our Supplier Portal (supplycollins.com), you can proceed by clicking "Log In" below. Employees can log in using their Rockwell Collins network user ID and password to access additional product information.

Additional sites are being integrated regularly. If you have questions about your account, please view the Help or contact your Rockwell Collins representative.

If you don't have a Rockwell Collins account, or you have access through a Rockwell Collins site that has not yet been integrated, you can request an account to access our integrated sites by clicking "Get Started" below.

Job seekers: Please visit our job search site to log in to your profile, search job listings and apply for a job.

I already have an account

Please note: Once logged in, when using our portals, if you do not see a personalized welcome in the upper left of the screen please click the "Log in or Continue" link to continue to access the resources for which you have been authorized.
