 To: <[nabilla@galaxy aerospace.my](mailto:nabilla@galaxy aerospace.my)>

Hello,

On August 16th, 2022 the FAA will be decommissioning the following databases housed on the Regulatory Guidance Library \(RGL\):

- Airworthiness Directives (AD)

After this date, these AD documents will only be available on the newly developed Dynamic Regulatory System \(DRS\). We have included a PDF instructional guide on how to locate this information in DRS. Additionally, please use the DRS Help & Training page for information.

Users may subscribe to receive notifications about published ADs and EADs by navigating to the FAA GovDelivery Service and selecting any applicable categories. Any notification subscriptions you already have will continue without any needed action. Other notifications and distributions of Emergency ADs will also remain unaffected.

Best Regards,

The DRS Development Team

Hello,

On August 16th, 2022 the FAA will be decommissioning the following database housed on the Regulatory Guidance Library \(RGL\):

• Airworthiness Directives: Biweekly (AD Biweekly)

After this date, these AD documents will only be available on the newly developed Dynamic Regulatory System \(DRS\). We have included a PDF instructional guide on how to locate this information in DRS. Additionally, please use the DRS Help & Training page for information.

Users may subscribe to receive notifications about published ADs and EADs by navigating to the FAA GovDelivery Service and selecting any applicable categories. Any notification subscriptions you already have will continue without any needed action. Other notifications and distributions of Emergency ADs will also remain unaffected.

We will continue to provide mailed copies of the AD Biweekly, which is a paid subscription of all ADs issued in the Federal Register over the previous 2-week period. The AD Biweekly is printed and mailed by the Government Printing Office (GPO).

Best Regards,

The DRS Development Team
